-possible photo album idea
       -feels nostalgic and could fit in nicely with the themes of the show
-multi page could be nice
       -would allow you to go more in depth about certain topics
       -could display the characters as well as the character development for the more important characters
-seasons would be its own page
       -you would be able to see significant plot details, so watchers of the show who want to re-watch but might not know where to start could remember what happened in certain parts
-iconic scenes or clips from show on a page
       -maybe broken up by season
-this website could also serve as a refresher page for people who have seen the show to remember what happened in certain parts to guide them to an episode that they have forgotten the name of -warm color palette for an autumn feel
       -a lot of the show takes place when it is autumn or cold outside, so having a warm color palette could create this feeling of Fall and to also create a feeling of coziness.
- the show was made in the early 2000s, so displaying that through typeface choices could be a way to convey this
